Biological Sciences UC Transfer Pathway

New for fall 2027

- The four biology Transfer Pathways—biochemistry, biology, cell biology, and molecular biology—have been consolidated into one Biological Sciences Transfer Pathway.
- Transfer students applying for the fall 2027 term and beyond will select “Biological Sciences Transfer Pathway” within the UC application.

Cal-GETC (and a little bit of IGETC)

Cal-GETC completion is not an admission requirement, but some campuses may consider Cal-GETC in their selection process.

- UC encourages optional LOTE certification
- Partial Cal-GETC certification is not in Cal-GETC Standards, but is allowed at UC
- UC does not have catalog rights; we rely on your expertise to verify pattern eligibility
  - UC will continue to accept IGETC certification for a few more years

A-G and Cal-GETC intersections

New Resource! A-G and Cal-GETC Intersections

Outlines how Cal-GETC approved CCC courses can fulfill first-year A-G requirements

What to know:

- Intersections is not inclusive of all UC-transferable courses.
- Cal-GETC certification is neither required nor expected of first-year applicants.

Dual enrollment general guidance

What to know

- All UC-transferable coursework, including those completed in high school, will be factored into the GPA for transfer admission consideration.
- UC will not accept repeated coursework where a grade of C or higher was originally earned.
- Transfer applicants cannot disregard dual enrollment courses completed while in high school and omit them from the UC application.
- Students exceeding unit/term limits may be ineligible for continued enrollment and financial aid.

UC’s ADT pilot updates

UCLA’s 2026–27 ADT Pilot

- Pilot program between UCLA and select CCCs
- Priority admission consideration for approved majors and corresponding ADT

2028–29 ADT Pilot Expansion

- Irvine, Merced, Riverside, Santa Barbara and Santa Cruz are pursuing ADT pathways.
- Campus faculty will determine majors and eligibility criteria in line with respective campus mission and transfer admission goals.
